Part XVIII. of "Cuneiform Texts from Babylonian Tablets, etc.," contains texts from one hundred and twenty-eight clay tablets and fragments of the Kouyunjik and other collections in the British Museum. The material published in this Part is entirely lexicographical in character, and forms a portion of the great class of explanatory compositions which the Assyrian scribes compiled and edited during the period of the later Assyrian kings. The copies herein given are made from the tablets drawn up by order of Ashur-bani-pal, king of Assyria from B.C. 668 to B.C. 626, for the Royal Library at Nineveh.

The Assyrian and Babylonian scribes were diligent students of their own literature, and with the twofold object of aiding themselves in their own researches and of assisting beginners in their studies they compiled catalogues of their principal literary works and wrote explanatory tablets and commentaries on the more difficult among them. They also studied the language itself and the Assyrian method of writing, and, in order to facilitate the study of early Assyrian and Babylonian texts, they compiled lists of the archaic forms of the characters and attempted to trace them back to the pictures from which they originally sprang. The Assyrian scribes also compiled syllabaries, or lists of signs, to which they added the values of the characters and their Assyrian names and meanings.

The Assyrian explanatory texts include grammatical paradigms made for the use of beginners, classified lists of verbal formations, and lists of ideographs arranged in some cases according to the forms of the characters with which they began or ended, and in others according to the meanings or roots of their equivalents.

Perhaps the most interesting class of grammatical tablets are the lists of synonymous Assyrian words, examples of which are published in the present Part; these tablets are really the oldest dictionaries in the world. The tablets are inscribed in double columns, that on the left containing the words to be explained, and that on the right the synonyms. Sometimes several synonyms are given for the same word, and in such cases the scribe, in order to save himself the trouble of repeating the original word, often makes use of the sign ¶, which is equivalent to our double commas (,,) or "ditto."

Many of the tablets given in the following plates have already been published either in whole or in part, and excerpts from them have been frequently quoted and discussed; they are, however, here published in a complete form for the first time. They may be conveniently classified under the following five headings:—

- (1.) Lists of synonymous Assyrian words belonging to tablets which have not been classified and collected into series (Plates 1-26). The following tablets and fragments have not hitherto been published completely: KK. 2036, 4181, 4193, 4214, 4233, 4375, 5420a, 5440a, 5454, 5566, 6842, 7719, 7728, 7764, 8312, 9892, 9931, 9980, 9983, 10014, 10029, 10089, 10798, 11170, 11191, 11205, 11401, 11555, 11773, 13579, 13585, 13606, 13629, 13635, 13654, 13681, 14083, 14104, 14134, 14157, 14789; SS. 53, 1614, 1744; D.T. 105 RR. 355, 360; 79-7-8, 38; 81-2-4, 434; and Bu. 89-4-26, 48.

- (2.) Lists of synonymous words inscribed upon tablets belonging to the Series which the Assyrians called 𐎠 𐎠𐎢 𐎠𐎢𐎣 𐎠𐎢𐎣𐎤 𐎠𐎢𐎣𐎤𐎥, i.e., MALKU = Sharru a word meaning "king." This Series obtains its name from the first pair of synonyms given in the first line of the First Tablet of the Series (Plates 27-31). It consisted originally of at least eight Tablets, of which portions of the First, and the Third, and the Eighth Tablets can still be identified by means of their colophons. The following fragments are here published for the first time: KK. 2054, 11233, 13593, 13612 and 13620.
- (3.) Lists of Sumerian words with their Assyrian equivalents inscribed upon tablets belonging to the Series which the Assyrians called 𐎠𐎢𐎣𐎤𐎥 𐎠𐎢𐎣𐎤𐎥𐎦 𐎠𐎢𐎣𐎤𐎥𐎦𐎧 𐎠𐎢𐎣𐎤𐎥𐎦𐎧𐎨, AN-TA-GAL = sa-ku-u ("to be high"), from the first line of the First Tablet of the Series (Plates 32-37). Portions of the Third, and the Fifth, and the Seventh, and the Eighth, and possibly of the Tenth Tablets of the Series have been identified by means of their colophons. The three fragments K. 8833, S. 1490, and 79-7-8, 31 are here published for the first time.
- (4.) Lists of Sumerian words with their Assyrian equivalents inscribed upon tablets belonging to the Series which the Assyrians called 𐎠𐎢𐎣𐎤𐎥𐎦𐎧𐎨𐎩 𐎠𐎢𐎣𐎤𐎥𐎦𐎧𐎨𐎩𐎪, ALAM = la-a-nu ("image"), from the first line of the First Tablet of the Series (Plates 38-41). The following fragments are here published for the first time: KK. 4191, 4243, 12022, and R. 2, 37.
- (5.) Lists of Sumerian words with their Assyrian equivalents inscribed upon tablets which have not been classified and collected into series (Plates 42-50). The following fragments are here published for the first time: KK. 214, 2022, 4192, 4555, 7699, 7707, 10083, 10194, and 80-7-19, 184.

The copies have been made by Mr. R. Campbell Thompson, M.A., Assistant in the Department.
