PREFACE

This volume is the second part of a Catalogue designed to include all those tablets in the British Museum which are designated 'Babylonian', a term used to cover all inscriptions in the collection other than Assyrian. The collections catalogued in this volume include major archives of the Ur III and Old Babylonian periods apparently deriving from Girsu (Tello) and Sippar (Abu Habbah) or Tell ed-Der. For the sake of completeness short descriptions are also given of items other than tablets registered in these collections.

The first volume of this catalogue, by H. H. Figulla, was published in 1960, covering the range 12230-15230. A draft for a further catalogue of tablets in the range 15231-20000 was compiled by Figulla in manuscript and on file-cards, and he also prepared a file-card index of the personal names on tablets in the range 15231-18000. A small group of tablets in the range 21000-21334 was catalogued on file-cards by E. Sollberger. When work on the present catalogue was resumed in the 1980s the decision was taken that the format of the catalogue had to be drastically reduced by comparison with volume 1 if the publication of the entire catalogue was not to become prohibitively expensive. Dr M. Sigris, of the École Biblique, Jerusalem, was invited to undertake the work of revising and abridging Figulla's manuscript. Sigris continued the catalogue to 22714 and incorporated a catalogue already made by C. B. F. Walker for the range 22715-23618. Sigris is primarily responsible for the final form of catalogue entries for Ur III texts and Walker for later texts. Professor E. Leichty contributed notes on some of the Neo-Babylonian texts. Note has been taken of recent work on the Old Babylonian archives from Sippar by Dr L. Dekiere of the University of Gent and Dr E. Woestenburg of the University of Leiden. A preliminary catalogue of the Museum's collections of Nuzi texts was published by M. P. Maidman in ZA 76 (1986) 254-288. It is inevitable that the compilation and revision of a catalogue over a period of some forty years by several different scholars will have resulted in many inconsistencies, but it was felt that giving scholars early access to the collections here catalogued was more important than the attainment of perfection.

The Department is extremely grateful to Dr Sigris and Professor Leichty for their work on this volume. Within the British Museum, C. B. F. Walker has devoted a great deal of time to checking matters of detail, preparing the volume for publication and liaising with British Museum Press. Best thanks are due to him for his invaluable contribution. Thanks are due also to Dr W. van Soldt of the University of Leiden for technical assistance in the preparation of the Catalogue for publication.

Provenance

Since all collections catalogued here were acquired by purchase, no information is available about the provenance of the various collections apart from what can be deduced from the tablets themselves. Apart from continuing to exploit those sites which had already been investigated on behalf of the British Museum by Hormuzd Rassam and others, it is clear that the Baghdad dealers had begun systematically looting major sites in southern Iraq, and in particular the large majority of Ur III texts known today must derive from such clandestine activities.

It is clear that almost all of the Ur III texts in this volume come from Girsu (Tello), and of the 95-10-17 collection it was reported to the Trustees, "They are said to come from the District of the River Hai". To save endless repetition this provenance should be assumed by default. A provenance is only suggested for an Ur III text if that provenance is other than Girsu.

In the case of Old Babylonian texts it seems likely that the majority come from Sippar (Abu Habbah) or Tell ed-Der. The 92-5-16, 92-7-9, and 94-1-15 collections, purchased from Messrs Selim Homsy & Co, were reported to the Trustees as being part of the 1891 find at Tell ed-Der. The provenance "Sippar" is however only stated where it can be demonstrated from the content of the tablets, especially from oath formulae. We have not attempted to assign provenances on prosopographical grounds. Tablets dated to the reigns of Warad-Sin and Rim-Sin probably come from Larsa; so too do the letters which form part of the well-known correspondence between Hammurabi and his officials at Larsa. Other tablets belong to the already well known bīt asīri archive of the reign of Rim-Anum of Uruk. Whether other Old Babylonian sites are represented in these collections remains to be determined.

The Kassite texts probably derive from Nippur; the Kassite texts of the previous volume (96-3-28 collection) were described in correspondence (Binney, 26/7/94) as "excavated in ... Nuffar". On grounds of content and prosopography the Nuzi texts probably come from Nuzi. For Neo-Babylonian and Achaemenid texts the provenance is stated wherever it is recorded in the text.

Chronology

All Ur III tablets are dated according to the calendar of Lagash and all Old Babylonian and later tablets are dated by the calendar of Nippur unless express indications to the contrary are given. In Old Babylonian legal texts the oaths by the kings are used as evidence for dating, but are not always individually specified. Thus a tablet dated in the catalogue simply as "Hamm" may have a broken Hammurabi year formula or may have an oath by Hammurabi. Royal names appearing on seal inscriptions (e.g. "servant of Hammurabi") have not been used as dating evidence. The following are the abbreviations used in indicating the chronological classification of the texts:

Terminology

In the case of Ur III texts Sumerian terminology is used for the sake of brevity and of incorporating more useful information about the texts, and in order to ensure that the catalogue entries remain useful even if our understanding of Sumerian terminology changes over the years.

Texts which contain reference to rations for dogs (ur-gi₇), mar-tu-mí, or lú Hu-bur_x(KU-PU), are here identified as "caravan texts". Some examples follow:

Seals and cases

So far as possible the full text of seal impressions on Ur III texts has been given; dub-sar is abbreviated as ds., and dumu as d. Because of the state of the tablets and the quality of the impressions this has not been attempted for Old Babylonian tablets. In the case of Old Babylonian tablets, the term "sealed" simply means that a tablet is sealed without reference to the number of seal impressions that appear on a tablet; there may be impressions of several seals, multiple impressions of a single seal, or a single impression of a single seal. It is assumed that students of seals will re-examine all sealed tablets themselves to verify the facts. Where a seal is identified on the tablet by a separate note (in German, Beischrift) the catalogue entry is, "Seals identified".

As in volume VIII, for case tablets which have not been removed from their cases (envelopes) we normally distinguish between "tablet in case" (where the inner tablet is visible) and "case unopened" (where the inner tablet is not visible).

Indices

The indices are based on the text of the present catalogue. Thus only the personal names contained in the catalogue entries appear in indices of personal names. The index of seal inscriptions is by the first name appearing on a seal inscription.

Egyptian numbers

It should be noted that six cylinder seals and beads transferred to the Department of Western Asiatic Antiquities from the Department of Egyptian Antiquities have numbers duplicating the numbers of tablets catalogued in this volume: 23151-23155 and 23157 (95-5-18, 1-5 and 7). In the Western Asiatic collection these now have the prefix E.
